

FORTHE FARMER.

To Prevent Rats, Mice, &c., from Working in the Granary.

These live pests are a great eye sore to all farmers and grain dealers, and a little care and trouble will keep them away, and at the same time the remedy will be a benefit to most kinds of coarse grain. For the benefit of those who would like to keep grain all summer, or a year, I will, in a brief manner, give the course to pursue, that the loss by these little thieves may be comparatively small.

After the grain is in the bin and made level and smooth, put on the top about four quarts of fresh slaked lime; let this be spread evenly over the grain. This will keep out rats and mice in a bin that contains one hundred bushels. This lime must be slaked so that it looks like flour fresh from the miller's bolt. If the lime is left upon the surface of the grain, the rats and mice will not skip and play there a great deal before they will have to sneeze some; and further than this, there is always enough grease or oily substance remaining upon the feet of rats and mice to make the lime adhere to them. After they have been once into it, they will not return again a second time. You may likewise throw this lime about their haunts with much benefit; but if insects are to be kept out, you must mix the lime with the grain as you put it in the bin, and shovel it through and through until it is mixed thoroughly; then place on the top four quarts of the slaked lime. Four quarts of unslaked lime is sufficient for one hundred bushels of grain; and it will do no hurt in any kind of grain if it is never taken out, for it is an alkali that is good for botts in horses. It will neutralize the acid in hog swill, and prevent their vomiting; and, in fact, this small quantity of lime would be a benefit to most kinds of stock if it should be ground with the grain.

If you apply lime to wheat, buckwheat and corn, or the like, and do not want it in the grain, get out your fanning mill and run it through.

To slake time perfectly, put it into a tight, stout vessel, and pour on boiling water, about half as much water as lime in bulk; cover up the lime as soon as the water is in, and leave it until cool. Good, unslaked lime will more than double its dimensions when well slaked.—Cor. Genesee Farmer.

To Make Butter in Five Minutes.

A correspondent highly recommends the following recipe:—After straining the milk, set it away for about twelve hours, for the cream to rise. After standing as above, set the milk without disturbing it, on the stove; let it remain there until you observe the coating of cream on the surface assume a wrinkled appearance, but be careful it does not boil, as should this be the case, the cream will mix with the milk, and cannot be again collected. Now set it away till quite cold, and then skim off the cream, mixed with as little milk as possible. When sufficient cream is collected, proceed to make it into butter, as follows:—Take a wooden bowl, or any suitable vessel, and having first scalded and then rinsed it with cold spring water, place the cream in it. Now let the operator hold his hand in water as hot as can be borne for a few seconds, then plunge it into cold water for about a minute, and at once commence to agitate the cream by a gentle circular motion. In five minutes, or less, the butter will have come, when, of course, it must be washed and salted according to the taste; and our correspondent guarantees that no better butter can be made by the best churn ever invented.

To those who keep only one cow, this method of making butter will be found really valuable; while quite as large a quantity of butter is obtained as by the common mode, the skim milk is much sweeter and palatable. In the summer it will usually be found necessary to bring the cream from the cellar (say a quarter of an hour before churning) to take the excessive chill off; in winter place the vessel containing the cream in a vessel of warm water to warm it; then continue to agitate the cream until the chill has departed.

Before washing the butter, separate all the milk you possibly can, as the latter will be found excellent for tea cakes.—Butter made in this manner will be much firmer and less oily in warm weather than when made in the ordinary way.—Scientific American.

PRESERVING EGGS.—The following is said to be an excellent recipe, and our farmers and others should try it:—Dissolve some gum shellac in a sufficient quantity of alcohol to make a thin varnish; give each egg a coat, and after they become thoroughly dry, pack them in bran or sawdust, with their points downwards in such a manner that they cannot shift about. After you have kept them as long as you desire, wash the varnish carefully off, and they will be in the same state as they were before packing, ready either for eating or hatching. This is certainly a very simple mode of preserving eggs, and very superior to the common method of laying them down in milk or lime.

WHAT WE EAT.—A man in active life requires thirty-six ounces of solid food per day—say nine ounces of animal and twenty-seven ounces of vegetable—according to established scales of diet in the English and French army and navy regulations.—Of food and drink, a man will consume about one thousand five hundred pounds a year.
